The Westonaria Interdenominational Prayer Women's League in partnership with the Department of Cooperative Governance and Traditional Affairs, community development workers and other local stakeholders embarked on a peaceful march against substance abuse in Bekkersdal on 8 August 2018. This was in response to the community's concerns on increasing use of substance abuse in the area and how young people are being abused by those selling drugs to them. The aim of the campaign was to raise awareness about the impact of drugs and to ensure that drug peddlers face the law.

Rehab Mataboge from the Interdenominational Prayer Women's League said, "We have gathered as women because we know how this affects families. Families are fragmented because young people have fallen victims of drugs. Nyaope is the bane of us as parents who live in fear of children who smoke this drug." She also said that they have realised that drug sellers are known in the communities but people are afraid to report to the police. She encouraged people to report drug dealers to the police.

The march, which started from Uptown taxi rank ended up at the Bekkersdal Police Station where a memorandum was handed over to the station commander, represented by Captain Boitumelo Sigwili. Police were given 21 days to address issues stated on the memorandum.

The village of Dithakwaneng in Naledi Local Municipality is blessed by an emerging talented and ambitious farmer, Christopher Melamu. The Government Communication and Information System visited Christopher on 25 July 2018 to profile his work. Christopher grew up in the environment of farming and started his own farm in 2004.

He started by buying five cattle as a start-up and approached the Land Bank in 2009 for funds and increased his livestock. He discovered a group of 13 cattle farmers who did not have running water and the health of their livestock was not good at all.

He then started specialising in breeding Bonsmara bulls and lent it to them to produce a new breed of cattle. He also provided his farmers with water and assisted them with farm management. The farmers have good quality cattle and soon they will be able to stand on their own. Christopher will take another group under his wing and help them become successful farmers.

OUTCOME 1: IMPROVED QUALITY OF BASIC EDUCATION.

Minister monitors Second Chance Programme

By Ntombi Mhlambi: GCIS, Free State

Basic Education Minister Angie Motshekga visited the Free State on 12 August 2018 as part of her outreach programme to monitor the Second Chances Programme. This is one of the department's initiative to provide Grade 12 learners who did not pass their examinations, to repeat the subjects they failed in their first attempt.

The department has recognised that most learners fail to repeat their Grade 12 due to various reasons hence the second-opportunity programme was created to enable them realise their dreams. Minister Motshekga said the Free State Provincial Government has perfected the programme as it has allocated resources to it. She said it was very critical for the youth to have a qualification as it is a minimum requirement almost everywhere.

The Minister also reflected on how the department could improve the programme by adding vocational courses, which will provide skills to the youth. Tshepo-Themba Secondary School principal said one of the main challenges was not having a permanent venue to give support to these learners.
