Grade 1 learners get ready for school

By Lehlohonolo Manoto: GCIS, Free State

Sentraal Primary School admitted 161 Grade 1 learners for English and Afrikaans classes for the 2017 school year. Although some of the learners have started their Grade 1 classes very smoothly and with jubilation, there were other children who found it difficult to adapt to the new environment, especially a formal classroom setting. Some of them were crying while others indicated that they wanted to sleep.

Minister touches lives of Ntongande Secondary School learners

By Bonginkosi Gumede: GCIS, KwaZulu-Natal

Minister of Communications, Faith Muthambi, encouraged learners from Ntongande High School in Mfolozi, KwaZulu-Natal to view cycling as a sport among disadvantaged communities. Minister Muthambi handed over 10 bicycles to learners on 11 January 2017 as part of her back-to-school campaign. The bicycles were given to learners who travel more than 15km to get to school.

“Our view is that the bicycles will lead to increased academic performance at the school and we also hope that it will lower the rate of absenteeism. The bicycles are intended to assist destitute students, who are in a desperate situation to get education and we are doing this because we are a caring government,” said the Minister. “We are a government that cares and we are here to encourage the youth to realise that education is key to many positive opportunities in life,” she added.

Minister Muthambi indicated that the idea behind these bicycles was to encourage learners to view cycling as a sport among disadvantaged communities as certain sports such as wrestling, cycling and rugby were regarded to be played in schools mainly in white areas. The Minister also engaged with the school’s management to identify critical needs in order for government to assist. She also used the campaign to promote the right to educate children and the role of parents in providing support as well as strengthening the education system.

Minister hands over a computer lab and school shoes

By Bongani Mazibuko: GCIS, Mpumalanga

On 13 January 2017, Communications Minister Faith Muthambi handed over a Computer Centre with information communication technologies equipment sponsored by MTN, at Izimbali Combined Maths, Science and Technology (MST) School in Amsterdam, in Mkhondo Local Municipality as part of government's 2017 back-to-school campaign.

Izimbali Combined MST School was officially opened by Mpumalanga Premier David Mabuza on 24 February 2014 and had its first enrolment of learners as a combined boarding school in that year. This came as a result of the closing down of a number of deep rural, farm schools wherein two, three or four different grades were taught in one classroom. Those farm schools lacked resources. Learners had to travel long distances to and from those farm schools daily. Some of them would only eat a decent meal for the day only at school through the School Nutrition Programme of government. The environment was never conducive for teaching and learning at all.

In improving the quality of basic education as the apex outcome of government, the Minister also handed over a fully equipped Interactive Multi-Media software computer centre at the school. She also handed over more than 350 pairs of school shoes for learners at the school.
